COLLABORATION WITH CQUNIVERSITY

CQUniversity Australia is committed to research that engages with industry to deliver real-world outcomes in our local and global communities.

After identifying a business challenge that may benefit from research, this is the typical pathway between initial contact and project delivery.

Contact us
Connect with the Research Partnerships Team at CQUniversity to explore options to collaborate. We'll advise what capability, resources and funding opportunities may be available.

Project scope
We will work with you to develop a Project Scope. This will outline a project brief, key milestones, timeframes and pricing.

Meet with a researcher
We will organise an initial conversation between yourself and our research team to outline the process, align expectations, map resources and begin co-designing a solution.

Leverage funding
We will investigate and work with you to explore the potential to scaffold the collaboration over time, using government grants and private equity where possible.

Agreement
The scope and/or proposal is formalised with the key milestones, timeframes, budget and Intellectual Property (IP) agreed.

Commence work and achieve project milestones
The project starts, and you'll receive progress updates as agreed in the reporting timeframes to ensure project goals are met and (continuing) work remains on schedule.

Project closure
Completion of the project occurs with mutually agreed, signed-off milestones and is likely to include a final report and debrief. The research and development outcomes are applied to ensure the impact of our collaboration makes a difference in your business, industry or community.

Explore new opportunities
The next innovation may be just around the corner. This is the time to discuss the potential for further collaboration in order to sustain innovation in your business.
